

HUNG YEN'S SPECIALITIES

Egg-shaped
Lychee

Dimocarpus
Longan

KEY FACTORS THAT MAKE THEM SPECIAL

- Indigenous plant varieties are carefully selected and improved over many years.
- Grown on nutrient-rich alluvial soil along the Red River Delta, benefiting from the typical transitional climate of Northern Vietnam.
- Nurtured by the delicate efforts and traditional farming experience of local farmers.

FAMOUS GROWING AREAS IN HUNG YEN

"The Egg-shaped Lychee capitals of Northern Vietnam"
Phu Cu District
An Thi District

"The growing regions of Dimocarpus Longan"
Tien Lu District
Khoai Chau District
Hung Yen City

OUTSTANDING FEATURES

- Small, round shape
- Thin, bright yellow skin
- Thick, milky white pulp that is crispy, tender, and easy to peel
- Strong natural aroma with a rich, sweet taste

- Oval shape, similar to a small chicken egg
- Thin, pinkish-red skin with smooth veins
- Thick, milky white flesh
- Sweet, juicy, and refreshingly fragrant flavor

